Bio

Fearful Symmetry is a studio-based project, originally created in 2018 by cousins Suzi James and Jeremy Shotts, who are Classic Rock and Prog fans and wanted to create something new from all the music they've enjoyed listening to, past and present - "an affectionate homage to classic prog, but contemporary sounding compositions, that cross different sub-genres, and aim to convey a familiar sound and feel".

'The Difficult Second' is the follow-up to the debut album 'Louder Than Words' (2019), and reflects the on-going approach to fusing many different styles and influences. Multi-instrumentalist Suzi, is joined by Yael Shotts (vocals), and Sharon Petrover (drums).

Most of the instrumentation is provided by Suzi James, who started playing guitar semi-professionally in bands in the 1970s, from blues to prog rock, and undertook some session work. Suzi has her own studio, and has added bass, keyboards, flute, violin, oud, and mandolin to her skills.

Yael Shotts, vocalist, was writing and performing in her own rock band from her mid-teens, spent time as singer with a jazz combo, and has performed at a festival as part of the 'choir' for the operatic metal band 'Scardust'.

Sharon Petrover is a professional studio and performance drummer based in Tel Aviv, working in all genres of music, as well as teaching. He has recorded with Project RnL, Square To Check, Daniel Weiss, among many others. <https://sharonpetrover.wixsite.com/sharonpetrover>

"A massive leap forward from what was already a very strong debut album." - Eddie McFadden, Prog Core Radio
